

THE DEPARTMENT OF COUNSELING

“Integrating Social Class into Counselor Education and Counseling Practice”

Faculty Candidate
Department of Counseling

Dr. Jennifer Cook

February 27, 2023

1:30 PM

Zoom: <https://utsa.zoom.us/j/98579089806>

Room FS 3.412

Jennifer M. Cook, Ph.D., LPC, NCC, is an associate professor in the department of Clinical Mental Health Counseling and Human Services at New England College. She is a passionate multicultural counselor, educator, researcher, and supervisor who infuses advocacy throughout her work. Her research focuses on counselor multicultural development, with specific emphasis on social class and socioeconomic status. Dr. Cook has published extensively, completed over 40 national and international peer reviewed presentations, and is currently writing a multicultural counseling textbook. She has served individual, couple, and family clients, many from underserved populations, in private practice and clinical mental health settings, and she has supervised clinical mental health, school, and clinical rehabilitation counselors-in-training.

For more information contact Dr. Derek Robertson
Derek.Robertson2@utsa.edu