

The University of Texas at San Antonio
College of Education and Human Development
Presents the
First Biennial Global Latino Education Advocacy Days Summit

Date: March 26, 2015

Time: 8:00 am – 5:30 pm (Central Time)

Location: UTSA Main Campus, HEB University Center Ballroom

The purpose of the Global LEAD Summit is to bring attention and discussion to critical issues in Latino education worldwide. This year's Global LEAD will focus in engaging dialogue in order to help create bridges between Latino Education in Latin American and the US. Representatives from different countries will form part of each panel ensuring that different sectors of the world will be able to discuss some of the initiatives within those research fields.

The summit will include four panels and a morning and an afternoon plenaries, which will be organized into research areas: Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics (STEM); biliteracy/ESL/TESOL; teaching/pedagogy, arts and education; immigration/migration, community development, and publication and dissemination. This global summit will include participants attending the event from across the country and the world through simultaneous live cast and will be free and open to the public.

Participants can attend Global LEAD either in person or sites can sign up as a Town Hall Viewing Event Partner and show the events of the day. Use the link below to sign up as a Town Hall Viewing Event Partner.
