PUNISHING THE POOR:

A Community Response to San Antonio Code Enforcement in Communities of Color

December 11, 2021

10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m CT

A recent University of Texas School of Law research report reveals that San Antonio's system of code enforcement disproportionately targets the homes of low income Black and Latinx residents. This report confirms the complaints that residents and housing activists have been making for over a decade about the unfair displacement of hundreds of residents. The report provides clear evidence of racial and class bias in San Antonio's code compliance policies and practices. Join us for an important panel and community conversation about this report and about the struggle to end these oppressive practices.
